Faculty Mentor, SIH-2022: Dr. V. Raju Reddy, Assistant Professor, ECED.

The journey of SIH 2022 has helped our students to gain knowledge which they can utilize in day-to-day life. The students worked on the problem statement and came up with an idea and developed a prototype for exhibition. We thank organizers of Smart India Hackathon-2022 for conducting such a great event which is helping every participant in some or the other way.

Team leader, SIH-2022: Bantu Nagarjuna

Smart India Hackathon-2022 gave us new experience which we would cherish every moment of our life. In the process of presenting the solution, our team became the best version of ourselves to learn the various methods. I think this is one of its kind experience every student must go through. We sincerely thank all the stakeholders of the Smart India hackathon for providing us the best experience, one could get

Testimonial – (Togaru Lavanith)

IIC played a very important role in fruition of the project presented at NASA's Thermal and Fluid Analysis Workshop 2019, Virginia, USA. The project at its core is about innovating loop heat pipe technology and ushering it into the modern age and IIC, KITSW is the hub for innovation. The faculty members were very supportive throughout the project and helped me iron out potential problems with the functionality. IIC has ensured I am provided with the necessary software and hardware for the completion of the project. The student community of IIC is very open – minded and they have helped me in setting a clear project timeline. I would like take this opportunity to thank Dr. P. Srikanth, Head, C-I2RE, for all his efforts, right from coordinating with engineering departments and research cell to the approval of my funding to the conference in the United States. I would also like to thank Sri Kishor Kumar, Faculty In- charge IIC, for guiding me in system design of the project. I am confident that IIC will be the hub for many more projects in the years to come.

Testimonial – (Naganathan Karthik)

The loop heat pipe wick design involved designing a product compatible with modern technologies of additive manufacturing and IIC has contributed a lot at every step. IIC has played a pivotal role in setting project goals and project milestones. My co – author and I had several discussions with the faculty and students of IIC and it gave us valuable insight in terms of innovative capability and scalability of the project as well as potential applications of the technology. IIC has coordinated with Mechanical Department and R&D cell and provided us with a very capable computer with design and simulation software without which our project would not have been completed. I would like to wholeheartedly thank Dr. P. Srikanth, Head, C-I2RE, for his unwavering support and leadership that helped us cross the finish line. I would also like to thank Sri. K. Kishor Kumar, for his insights in the structural design of the wick. I am very thankful to have such a kind and supportive community. I am certain that IIC, KITSW is going to be the center piece for the innovation in our college and mould students to be future innovators.
